sembly and its demonstration was somewhat startling. The bill had been sponsored, too, by the National Reform association, an organization which frequently has co-operated so closely with the klan that it was sometimes difficult to distinguish them. This association rushed in a "high power" promoter of its reform movements, from another state and held two mass meetings, one Sunday and Tuesday night.

JUDGE REEVES FARM

Is Sold—M. M. Miesse, Well Known Gardner Is Purchaser.

The Judge Reeves farm, north of Lancaster, was sold at the Court House, Saturday afternoon, to M. M. Miesse, former owner of the Miesse Greenhouses. The price paid for the 125 acres was slightly in excess of $15,000. The fifty acre tract south of Lancaster was not sold.

It is understood that Mr. Miesse will engage in extensive gardening, with the possibility of later on erecting a greenhouse.

Wm. Sauerbreir, who has been a tenant upon the Judge Reeves farm for 30 years, will move to his own farm upon the Cedar Hill pike.—Lancaster Eagle.

U. S. SENATOR M'CORMICK DIES SUDDENLY.

His regular work is to repair broken watches and clocks, but world prominent scientists and astronomers beat a path to his humble door to confer with him on mathematics and problems of astronomy. Haldeman is a charter member of the Mathematical Association of America and a member of the Royal British Society for the Encouragement of the Arts. He never attended a convention in his life nor attended college. He is seventy-five years old and a bachelor.

THIRTEEN MILLION DOLLARS

Will be Spent in Chicago for Public Improvements as Result of Election.

Chicago, Feb. 25 (UP).—Chicago will spend $13,500,000 in public improvements as a result of yesterday's municipal voting, according to the vote as tabulated today.

The largest items approved by the voters were for law enforcements. They are a new criminal court and county jail to cost $4,500,000; and a new central police headquarters $2,500,000. The other projects include improved street lighting, refuse disposal, public playgrounds and a hospital.

A majority of the sitting aldermen were reelected.

Japs Settle in Tennessee

Memphis, Tenn.—The movement to place thousands of Japanese farmers in the rich portions of Arkansas between Marion and Joyner, Ark., began to take form several days ago when two families of Japanese from California settled upon this vast acreage and, according to Dean Adams, Memphis realtor, Japanese have incorporated and proposed to buy several thousand acres of land in that section and colonize it with 50,000 Japanese, the Commercial-Appeal says. The proposed colony will engage solely in farming.

Father and Daughter Hang Out Shingle

Dayton, Ohio.—"Thomas Herman and Daughter, Attorneys." Thus reads the shingle hung out recently by Thomas Herman and his daughter, Louise, twenty-three. It is believed to be the first "father and daughter law firm."

Louise was admitted to the Ohio bar recently. She has a high school education and has studied law in her father's office four years.

CHEAPER ELECTRICITY AND WATER

Richard Biehl Gives Splendid Address to Chamber of Commerce.

The chamber of commerce was treated to a splendid address Tuesday evening. Richard Biehl, city manager of Westerville, accompanied by R. E. Windom, service director, were present. The former gave a talk and told his audience how much better was "The Commission Form of Government" than the present system.

The speaker told how they saved money for the citizens of Westerville, the Biggest Little City in Ohio, or as W. F. Cellar, who introduced the speaker, put it, from "the best managed city in Ohio."

The speaker said that they paid less for electricity and less for water. The town owns its own municipal water works and power company.

He said that we are paying too much for both of these conveniences and told us that we ought to own and operate both power company and water works.

A mayor in a town of the size of Westerville does not receive enough salary to devote his whole time to running the town; it is a side issue with him. The city manager devotes his whole time as he receives a salary sufficient to do this and consequently if you have the right man he will save your town money in operating expenses. In fact, enough, to pay a city manager a fair salary. Westerville has had seven years of experience under the city managership and is as keen for it today as she was, when it was first given a charter.

Columbus, Feb. 24 (U. P.).—Speaker Harry Silver's reprimand of two solons for the alleged excessive use of liquor was considered closed today.

State house attaches discredited reports that the subject would be investigated officially. Silver said he cared to go no further than the reprimand.

TURNED SOMERSAULT DOWN STAIRS

Mrs. Jennie Tipton, mother of Fred C. Tipton, of The Williamsport News, had a harrowing experience last Friday night when she somersaulted down stairs at her residence.

In the fall Mrs. Tipton had her right arm broken at the wrist; how she escaped more serious injury is a miracle. On the side wall of the stairway Mrs. Tipton made footprints in her descent.

Dr. Sheets reduced the fracture.

QUARTER MILLION DOLLARS

Paid by Taxpayers to Operate Cities, Counties and State Government.

Columbus, O. Feb. 25 (UP).—Ohio taxpayers "dug down" for a total of almost $250,000,000 last year to pay the cost of operating their cities, counties and state governments, according to figures in a report given out today by State Auditor Joseph T. Tracy.

That was almost $11,000,000 more than the 1923 cost.

The report shows that Cuyahoga county paid out $8,705,044.05 more last year than in 1923 and that the total increase in the other eighty-seven counties of the state was only $2,262,435.74, making a total increase in tax collections of $10,967,479.79.

One-fourth of the total tax collections for Ohio came from Cuyahoga county, amounting to $62,283,500.54.

Paris Skirts to Be Short; Flare

Knee-Length Type Will Emphasize Russian Silhouette—Long Coats

Paris salons are about to open their doors for their annual spring showings, and speculation is keen concerning the trend of the new mode. The interest this year, observes a writer in the New York Herald-Tribune, is heightened by the fact that for the first time in many seasons youthful simplicity will not be the keynote of the new styles. Paris has already definitely indicated that the new chic will replace eternal youth with mature sophistication and the spring costumes will be designed to emphasize this radically different ideal. Certain spring tendencies can be safely predicted at this time, and for the benefit of the frugal lady who wants her late winter acquisitions to be in vogue next autumn, a few style ideas are noted which will definitely be a part of the spring mode.

Skirts will be short—in Paris they will reach just to the knees and on these more conservative shores, several inches below. But the short silhouette of spring will bear no resemblance to the ultra-simple postwar outline, which was also short. The new skirt will flare—along Russian lines—and it will be accompanied by a bodice with a choker collar. The net result of the short skirt and choker neck will be to give the effect of a raised silhouette—starting higher and ending higher—rather than the abbreviated outline of the past. Long sleeves, inaugurated last autumn, will again appear and, combined with the high collar and the flat sophisticated coiffure, will achieve the new chic.

More elaborate styles, predicted months ago, will replace the tubular simplicity of recent seasons. The much discussed flare, confined to the front or a single side, will occupy a niche in spring fashions. Plouces, tunics, ruffles and slashed skirts will be manipulated in various ways to achieve the new silhouette.

From present indications the typical spring coat will open directly in front and will show definite tendencies toward a flared and fuller back—another evidence of the Russian influence in the spring silhouette. The sports coat will be the leading type and it will be developed in camel's-hair cloth and similar fabrics. Ottoman and suede cloths are the most certain fabrics for the formal models.

Ribbon Cushion Adds to Coziness of Room

Use an oblong cushion, not too large, for the foundation. Cover it with wide ribbon or silk of a color that will harmonize with the decorations of your room. For the loops choose a narrow ribbon about one or one and a half inches wide of the same or of a contrasting color. Cut the top of the cushion cover. Bind or cord the edges. Loop the ribbon and sew the loops to the under side of this oblong. The loops should be two inches long if one-inch ribbon is used, or two and a half inches if wider ribbon is used. Gather some of the narrow ribbon on one or both edges and pin it down to form the flowers. Stitch the ribbon in place. Three different colors or shades of one color should be used for the flowers; green ribbon for the leaves and green embroidery silk for the stems. Make the tassels of silk or ribbon to match the flowers.

White Evening Gown Is Prominent This Season

White as the shade for evening wear is one of the outstanding features of the modes of the winter, and it is astonishing how varied in type these white evening dresses are and how different and individual.

A great deal of their difference lies in the choice of materials, for nothing could be farther apart in resemblance than the white chiffon frock of the debutante and the rich brocaded gown of the matron.

In line they vary quite as much as in material and it is hard to say which are loveliest, the filmy bouffant models or those with a slim grace of line as subtle as it is distinctive.

Slim frocks of chiffon or satin-finished crepe are delicately beaded in crystal or silver or flounced with silver lace, and the effect is almost transcendent in its fragile loveliness. They are about the most flattering frocks that one could wear, which no doubt is the reason for their vogue. Others are trimmed with ostrich or marabou, while white velvet banded with ermine or white fox fashions several of the most striking gowns of the year.

Use Hard Water in Mixing Spray

Government Bulletin Tells of Methods for Preparing Solutions.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

More than half of the citrus groves are located in arid or semi-arid districts. A large proportion of the finer grades of fruit are grown in groves that are dependent wholly or in part upon deep-well water for spraying purposes. The water from these wells is known as hard water, containing minerals in such proportions that the ordinary or unstabilized oil emulsions will not mix with it unless the water has been previously treated.

Mix With Well Water.
It has been found that oil emulsions stabilized with any one of a number of different colloidal substances will mix with practically all deep-well waters even when untreated. These stabilized oil emulsions will also mix with lime-sulphur solutions, making a highly effective combination spray for white flies, scale insects, and rust mites. When a combination of this kind is properly made by a competent grove manager it is a reasonably safe spray for either citrus foliage, branches or fruit. The stabilized oil emulsions have met with much favor among many of the largest citrus growers, who no longer find any difficulty in using the untreated water from deep wells.

Methods for Treating Water.
A new United States Department of Agriculture Bulletin No. 1217, "Mixing Emulsified Mineral Lubricating Oils with Deep-Well Waters and Lime-Sulphur Solutions," by W. W. Yothers, entomologist, and J. R. Winston, pathologist, discusses the best methods for treating deep-well water, but also recommends using stabilized oil emulsions with untreated water.
Directions and formulae are given for stabilizing oil emulsions by applying various colloidal substances, such as casein, milk, skimmed milk powder, gelatin, cornmeal, wheat flour, cornstarch, and laundry starch, as well as glue. Those interested may obtain the bulletin, as long as the supply lasts, by applying to the Division of Publications, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Crop Production Behind Increase in Population

Crop production in the United States is not keeping pace with the annual increase in population, according to figures just released by the United States Department of Agriculture. Total crop production has increased 13 per cent during the past twelve years, but production per capita has decreased about 5 per cent.

The mass of crop production in 1924 as measured by an index number is 113 per cent of the average for the five-year period 1910-14, and in 1923 the figure was 110 per cent. The index of crop production per capita in 1924 is 95 per cent of the average for the five-year period, and in 1923 the index figure was 94 per cent.

There was a decrease of about one-fifth of 1 per cent in acreage of crops from 1923 to 1924 but production in this period increased 1 per cent. The trend of crop production per capita has been lagging since about 1915, with the exception of 1920, the department says.

Kansas Potato Growers Are Treating More Seed

In the Kaw valley of Kansas, seed potato treatment for control of tuber-borne diseases has been found to bring increased yield.

When agricultural extension workers began demonstrating approved methods of treating the seed in the potato-growing communities, very few farmers in this section used this preventive measure. Method demonstrations were followed by the growing of test plots in which treated and untreated seed was planted by farmers under the direction of extension workers. These test plots gave such farmers and their neighbors an opportunity to compare the results from the use of treated and untreated seed. The number of Kaw valley acres on which treated seed potatoes were planted has increased each year, according to reports to the United States Department of Agriculture, from practically none in 1918 to more than 6,000 acres in 1924.

Crop Production in 1924

Estimates made by the United States Department of Agriculture show that the 19 truck crops produced in this country this past year for table use canning and manufacture had a gross value to the growers of $313,000,000. This is $12,000,000 less than in 1923. Tomatoes were first in gross value, showing a total of $55,000,000. Also the largest acreage was devoted to this crop. Irish potatoes were valued at $44,000,000; strawberries, $35,900,000 and cantaloupes, $20,000,000.

Useful Litter Carrier

It is best to provide a good manure and litter carrier when one is making preparations to take care of the manure. It is one of the greatest labor-savers that can be found about the modern barn. The manure can be forked into the carrier easier than it can be thrown from the windows, and once the carrier is filled, it takes but a few moments to roll it out to the pit and dump the contents by the release of a mechanical lever.

Is It a Real One?
Here is quite an easy way to tell whether a diamond is a genuine one or not. Make a small dot on a piece of paper with a lead pencil and look at it through the diamond. If it shows only a single dot it is a genuine stone, but if it shows more than one dot you've been "had."

Death.

Death is nothing more or less than slipping back into your own subconsciousness, and so becoming greater and finer and more active—more useful, too—and with grander powers than we ever had in our limited imperfect bodies. Life is nothing but an episode in our universal life. Death is just a change of direction then, really; that's all.—From "The Promise of Air," by Algernon Blackwood.

Classic Phrase Becomes Slang.
Once in a blue moon a moist, of classic phraseology is preserved in the slang of the day. "Lashed to the mast" comes directly from the highest source of American poetry, Henry Wadsworth Longfellow. Today it means a person held against his will in an absolutely helpless position, at the mercy of the elements or of enemies. Longfellow used it in literally this fashion, too, as any school child will recall who has read the fate of the skipper's daughter in "The Wreck of the Hesperus."

EXTENSION COMMITTEE APPOINTED

By Pickaway County Farm Bureau—Step in Advance of Other Counties.

Pickaway County Farm Bureau again took a step in advance of other counties when at a special meeting of the board of directors and executive committee an extension committee of six members was appointed.

Charles Cromley, Ashville, chairman; C. B. Teegardin, Mrs. B. W. Young, Mrs. Cora Rader Hood, Mr. George Wertman and Mrs. Homer Wright are the members. This committee meets with the County Agent to help him with the extension program and also assists in its execution. Each township will have an executive committee to plan and carry on its extension program.

Capsule Treatment.

The hog worm capsules that the Farm Bureau is furnishing to Pickaway county farmers are giving excellent results. The Farm Bureau keeps a supply on hand. Farmers can get them for eight cents each at the office. Ask any one who has used them about their results.

Ham Growers Banquet.

Fifty farmers and their wives attended the First Annual Ham Growers' banquet. Dr. C. W. Gay was toastmaster and from all the favorable comments we have heard we shall have him back next year. N. E. Shaw of the Stockman and Farmer, Paul Gerlach, of Ohio State University, and Robert Wylie were on the program. James Swearingen and Harry J. Briggs were requested to call pigs and they surely did make the room echo with melodious summons to the pigs.

Farmers' Week.

Seventy-five Pickaway county farmers attended Farmers' Week at the University. G. H. Armstrong and Charles E. Cromley were the delegates from the Pickaway County Farm Bureau. These men gave a fine report of their time spent at the annual meeting of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation.

Organization Committee.

G. H. Armstrong, Wilson Dunkel, James Swearingen, Paul Cromley, Ralph Head, Warner Neff, Harry J. Briggs, Dwight Rector and H. O. Peters were appointed to serve on a permanent organization committee for 1925. These men will be at the head of the membership campaign to be launched here soon and will take care of all organization work throughout the year.

Livestock Shipping.

Since the County Service Manager was employed he has shipped 190 decks of livestock for Pickaway county farmers. The year improvements at the Pennsylvania shipping pens at Circleville have been granted and work will begin on them soon. This will be of very material benefit to the shippers as many more hogs can then be graded out to go direct to the packers.

Important to Retain Pulse.

Above all things keep a grip on your courage. Don't let loose assertions poison the mind. Prove every position that offers advancement and every statement that offers you power and preference before you put yourself at their mercy. There are enough legitimate things to keep you busy. Let the great schemes that usually end in smoke die from neglect. Hold fast to things worth while even though they do not offer anything to rave about. In the end they will be seen to provide the bread and butter which the other scheme gave only in promise. So keep a grip on yourself. Learn to think and feel deeply and act what you are. The world is tired of shallow ravings and wants the touch of the genuine.—Grit.

WANT NEW RAILROAD.

Editor Union-Herald—Our town has always let out a cry about no industries coming to it. One of the best reasons is on account of the railroads. Right now the new proposed route of the C. & O. railway is going to go thru. The least possible part of Circleville it can hit and about 15 feet above it on a trestle. Circleville should see why the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad does not come into it on account of the competitive freight rates it will afford, passenger service to a new territory and better shipping on less than carload lots of freight.

As I understand it a railroad is a common carrier and is built to serve the people.

By having the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad come into Circleville with a freight and passenger station, also a live stock loading yards, it would give the shippers a much larger territory to market the corn, wheat, hay, cattle, hogs and all kinds of farm produce; further, it would give our Mid-West Box company (the best plant in town) new territory for straw and a chance to get their coal at a competitive price against the Norfolk & Western railroad.

Has the chamber of commerce and the Rotary club looked into this matter? Another railroad will help out by many thousands each year. A telegram or two to the Interstate Commerce commission will help a great deal and followed up by letters, will put things our way instead of letting them get awake.

I would like to hear from others.
Signed,

WAKE-UP.

New Austrian Currency Wipes Out Millionaires

Vienna.—American visitors to Austria, who used to get a thrill when on crossing the Austrian frontier they had to pay 70,000 crowns for their first meal on Austrian soil in the dining car, will soon be deprived of this sensation. They will no longer gasp, as they did when tailors in Vienna charged them 4,000,000 crowns for a suit of clothes.

They will not be benumbed by huge figures with little meaning, nor hesitate before giving the elevator boy a 1,000-crown bankbill. Austria is to have a new currency, which will reduce everything to the seven-fold of dollar prices.

Future denominations will be "shilling" and "steuber," and seven shillings will be equal to $1, while the shilling will be subdivided into 100 steubers. There will be 10,000 paper crowns to one shilling.
An Austrian million, which almost anybody might have, will melt down to 100 shillings. Owners of paper billions, or "milliardaere," as they are called, no longer will be in the capitalist class, as one paper billion will be worth only 100,000 shillings.

Daily Thought.

Progress is the law of life, man is not man as yet.—Robert Browning.

"Take It Easy."
A great many young folks make hard work of things that should be perfectly easy, and as long as there are plenty of really hard duties to be done, it seems a pity to make hard work of the rest. One of the arts of life is to learn to do our work in the easiest way, saving on the simple tasks strength to apply to the hard duties.

SOLVE SECRET OF "GENTLEMAN BUM"
Brothers Trace History of Cultured Beach Comber.

Bay Shore, N. Y.—Photographs of the "gentleman beach comber" who committed suicide in his hut on Fire Island, were identified by relatives as those of Andrew Sherman McMillen, sixty, a contractor and former lawyer, who disappeared from Bridgeville, Pa., seven years ago.

Identity was established by McMillen's brothers, Charles E. and George B. McMillen of Bridgeville, and George H. Baird, Pittsburgh banker.

McMillen's brothers examined letters, trinkets and friends of "old Mac," as the man was known, until they found a photograph of him taken only a month ago. It was the picture of a bent and broken old man, with a flowing beard and white hair.

McMillen once was an attorney in Bridgeville. Then he became a contractor and constructed many bridges in suburbs of Pittsburgh. He was a Mason and an Elk.

Seven years ago he was divorced and shortly thereafter disappeared.

About five years ago "Old Mac" moved into a hut on Fire Island. It was learned, to become a beach comber. There he gathered seaweed in season and acquired scores of friends among wealthy summer residents.

Bundles of newly received holiday greetings were found in the McMillen hut. Inquiry disclosed that "Old Mac" had journeyed to Brooklyn and New York to return many of the greetings. But none of those who knew him best had been able to glean an item of his past history.

They knew him as a cultured old gentleman in a beach comber's garb, who liked to chat on intellectual subjects and to play with children, who conversed in several languages and who played the violin well.

State police knew and liked him and so did the young fellows in the United States naval radio station. He used to visit and chat with them and sometimes have them apply emergency kit medicines to alleviate the pain of internal diseases for which he several times had been operated upon and which are believed to have driven him to suicide.

One of the naval radio operators a month ago took the snapshot which enabled McMillen's brothers to identify him.

Bank books indicated that the beach comber once had $3,000 on deposit in a local bank. But when he died the account held only $3, while his effects yielded only six cents.

Block in Heart of Oxford to Be Sold

Oxford, England.—An entire block in the center of Oxford, comprising some 40 old buildings, is to be sold by the city within the next six months.

Several hundred years ago the city bought this strip of waste land, lying outside the walls and along the horse market, for a mere song. Now the leases are at an end, and the freehold is extremely valuable.

As the block extends nearly the whole length of Broad street and back to Ship street, the university, and especially Balliol, Trinity, Exeter and Jesus colleges, are greatly concerned. The introduction of large shops and garages in this area would mar one of the finest streets left in Oxford, and add to the noise and traffic problem, as well.

The university and the colleges concerned are too poor to buy the block, so an attempt is being made to have it purchased by wealthy subscribers for university purposes.

In the meantime, the city is going on with the sale. Now that the colleges have taken to purchasing their supplies from wholesalers outside Oxford, there is no love lost between the university and city authorities.

Offers to Pay Damage His Horse Did to Engine

Iron Mountain, Mich.—The unusual happens in all lines of industrial activity, but the officials of the Northwestern railroad are discussing an incident that holds no parallel in the history of the company.

The collision of a freight train with a horse and a wagon is not new to railroading. And claims for damages to compensate the owner of the horse and wagon for his losses are nothing to excite the railroad world.

But when the owner of the horse and wagon sends an apology to the railway company declaring the fault to be his, and requesting a bill in order to pay the loss inflicted on the railway company, that is different.

Yet this is precisely what happened recently when a horse valued at $300, hitched to a load of wood, was struck by a Northwestern freight train at Iron Mountain and killed. The wagon was wrecked and the wood strewn along the tracks.

The following day M. J. Fox of the Von Platen Lumber company, Iron Mountain, owner, wrote to the company offering to pay all damages it had suffered in the melee.

HAIR CUTTING AND IRON WORK TAUGHT IN ALASKA

School Chiefs Lay Groundwork for Course of Home Education for Eskimos.

Anchorage, Alaska.—While public schools, universities and colleges in the United States are forging ahead into the winter term's work, a widely scattered little band of pioneering educators in isolated sections of Alaska is laying the groundwork for the home education of Eskimos.

Scarcity of manual training material has resulted in the introduction of the teaching of hair cutting, ivory carving and iron work, such as the making of dog chains, skates from old sled shoes and knives from old files.

Under a plan worked out by J. H. Wagner, chief of the Alaska bureau of the United States bureau of education, with headquarters at Seattle, and approved by Dr. J. Tigert, commissioner of education, industrial schools are to be established at Kaniakak, Bristol Bay, White Mountain, Seward Peninsula and Eklunna, 28 miles north of here.

Courses to be taught include: Animal husbandry—Study of reindeer problems, with special attention devoted to methods of slaughter and preparation of meat for cold storage and market.

Fishing—Operation of a small cannery, curing, smoking, salting and drying of fish.

Ivory industry—Making buttons, beads and curios such as butter knives and napkin rings.

Tannery—Curing of skins and manufacture of leather.

Boat building—Construction of boats and operation of gasoline engines.

Tailoring—Particular attention to fur garments.

Commercial—Training of typists, stenographers and managers and clerks for native co-operative stores.

Carpentry, nursing and sanitation, household management and home-making and music and folk dancing, with special attention given to tribal dancing.

Harvard to Get $110,000 if Heir Dies Under 40

New York.—Harvard university is the contingent legatee of $110,000 under the will of Alden Sampson, author and naturalist, on file in the Surrogate's court.

The provision for Harvard is contingent on the death of Edward Sampson of Washington, a son, before the age of forty.

In that case the university is to receive the $110,000 to endow a chair of poetry. Under the same condition the residuary estate is to be divided equally between Harvard and Princeton universities and Haverford college.

Edward Sampson, the son, is to receive realty and personal belongings of his father. He is to receive the income from the residuary estate until he is forty, when he is to have the principal.

The testator left to his widow the income from a $50,000 trust fund. Two sisters received $5,000 each.

NORTH AMERICAN BEASTS WERE KILLED BY BLIGHT

Professor Stauffer Refuses to Believe That Prehistoric Mammoths Died of Natural Causes.

Minneapolis, Minn.—Mammoths and mastodons, numbering thousands, which once roamed the western plains of America, penetrating to Alaska and as far east as New York, died under the blight of some mysterious power of nature, something that the science of man has not yet been able to discover, according to Prof. Clinton R. Stauffer, geologist at the University of Minnesota.

Not only the elephants of North America, but the horse and the fierce saber-toothed tiger, his early contemporaries, died and vanished in a way that has not been explained.

Large natural assumptions, that they died because of climatic changes; that their proper food vanished; or that man slew them must all be abandoned, Doctor Stauffer declares.

"At least some of these creatures lived into post-glacial times when the climate was much what it is now, and all could stand temperatures even colder than those of the modern age," says Doctor Stauffer. In the stomach of a mammoth found frozen in Siberia, where he had died, was a meal of vegetation such as still grows. He was the same type of animal that lived in North America.

"Primitive man lived when these creatures did, but with his small numbers and crude weapons, he stood as much in danger of them as they did of him. He did not slaughter them as his successors did the bison.

"The only modern parallel for such a disappearance in North America is that of the passenger pigeons. Man slaughtered these by the million, but it has never been established that this carnage alone caused their final extinction."

Doctor Stauffer inclines to the belief that a pestilence caused the disappearance of the mammoth, tiger and horse, although he sees no reason why all should have succumbed to the same disease, nor does he think they all passed at the same time. But they did all live at the same time, and all vanished, possibly 100,000 years ago.

The horse alone repopulated part of North America after escaping from Spanish invaders in the sixteenth century. He then proceeded to flourish greatly.

Since last summer when the discovery of several Jeffersonian elephants in Minnesota was reported by geologists, the number has increased to thirty. Formerly only about half that number had been known in Minnesota.

COLLEENS' CALVES BOOST SILK TRADE

Demand for Shimmering Hose Booms in Industry.

London.—The little shop girls of Ireland are responsible for a boom in the artificial silk trade that is one of the bright spots in the business life of these isles.

The manufacturers of a new process of weaving artificial silk material, an industry started long before the war, are now banking fattened dividends because the girls in the shops and offices, and even schools, are no longer content to wear the cotton stockings and cotton blouses which they displayed before and throughout the war.

That attitude for style changing which in America could make and unmake flapper fashions overnight, moves slower in England, and a year or so ago the English girls found that much of their social standing was based upon silk stockings.

The manufacturers of the artificial silk then reopened their mills, closed by post-war dormancy, and have kept the factories working overtime producing stockings, blouses and other similar articles. The artificial silk trade has grown until now most of the long-established woolen and cotton spinning firms are producing artificial silk of some sort. Machinery for making artificial silk garments and novelties is being invented and marketed daily.

Since the war factories for producing the synthetic silks have been established at Bury, Nelson, Peterborough and Golbourne.

The industry has spread also to India, where artificial silk shawls, headresses and cloths are being produced with even a more luxurious gloss and feathery softness than real silk.

Church's Election Sermon

In the Old South church in Boston, famous for many exciting meetings in Revolutionary days, it was an annual custom to have an election sermon. This custom began in 1712 and continued with few interruptions, yearly, to 1872.

Many Elements

There's much to be sold with a house besides its roof and doorstep. The thing that makes a house into a home may be in part the general atmosphere of the town, the neighborhood, and the street which give it a setting.

Joy Comes From Within

Joy is a prize unbought, and is freest, purest in its flow, when it comes unsought. No getting into heaven, as a place, will compass it. You must carry it with you, else it is not there.—Horace Bushnell.

AMUSEMENTS

James Cruze, noted Paramount producer, who jumped into the directorial limelight with "The Covered Wagon," "Merton" and other screen successes, recently finished a new Paramount picture which is being hailed as another screen masterpiece.

"The City That Never Sleeps" is his latest of cinema thrillers, and local fans will soon have the opportunity of judging its worth because it is due today at the Met theater for a three days' run.

The story is an adaptation of "Mother O'Day," by Leroy Scott, which ran serially in McCall's Magazine. It has New York for its background—that portion of New York which has made the city so famous. The night life of New York of today is contrasted with that of a decade ago when the Bowery was full in the heyday of its glory.

Briefly the story deals with a mother's sacrifice for her only daughter, her efforts to protect the child from the Tenderloin environment in which she herself was brought up. Later she comes face to face with the bitter realization that despite all she has done to prevent it, her daughter is traveling too fast a pace. The manner in which she saves her daughter by making the supreme sacrifice provides real thrill and leads to a mighty climax.

With a cast that includes such likeable players as Louise Dresser, Virginia Lee Corbin, Kathlyn Williams, Ricardo Cortez and Pierre Gendron there is no lack of acting talent. The entire production was done in typical Cruze fashion and you know what that means!

By all means see this picture.

x HARTMAN THEATER. x x x x x x x x x

Playgoers of this section will be privileged to witness one of the most enthusiastically praised plays of the generation when "Seventh Heaven" is presented at the Hartman theater Columbus for one week beginning Monday, March 2. This is the newest dramatic success of John Golden who blended the fun and heart throbs of "Lightning," "Three Wise Fools," "The First Year," "Dear Me" and other plays that rank with the best loved offerings of the American stage because of their wholesomeness and gentle humanity.

"Seventh Heaven" is different from their earlier Golden plays in that its scenes are laid in Paris. The other have been typically American usually dealing with home life and quaint, everyday characters. But the same formula of clean fun and gentle pathos has been followed. The principal characters are Diane, a neglected waif of Paris slums and Chico, a swaggering street washer. Thru their suffering in the crucible of the great war the pair are lifted from squalor and ignorance to heights of great happiness in religious understanding and true love. Their elevation to the "Seventh Heaven" of bliss gives the play its title. The war serves merely as a background and is in no sense a "war play." Ann Forrest, blonde beauty of film and stage, plays Diane and Louis D'Arcy, a young Belgian actor from Mme. Rejane's repertoire company and theater Odeon, Paris, is Chico.

Matinees are announced for Wednesday and Saturday during the Columbus engagement. Mail orders will be given careful attention.

CONGRESS WORKING HARD TO CLEAR

The Mass of Legislation On Its Desk Before Noon March Fourth.

By Paul R. Mallon

(United Press Stag Correspondent.)
Washington, Feb. 23.—Hints of filibusters were in the air when congress set to work today to clear the mass of legislation on its desk before noon March 4.

Muscle Shoals, postal pay, the Lausanne treaty, farm relief and other important laws were mixed on turmoil of doubt that caused Republican leaders to seek for compromises.

Eight working days remain. Hundreds of bills remain to be passed. Half of them at least must be shoved on the scrap heap.

But with work on the necessary appropriations bills practically completed, leaders found it hard to induce sponsors of any bills to desert their measures. Every one believes his bill has a chance.

Here's the situation as outlined to the United Press by Floor Leaders of both houses:

Muscle Shoals.

The independent group led by Senators Norris, Smith and McKellar believes it is justified in fully debating the pending point of order which ruled the Underwood bill into the discard. A preliminary poll indicates that one or two votes will decide the issue—with the chances favoring upholding the ruling of the chair, which might prevent action at this session. Even if the chair is over-ruled and the bill is placed in order a careful three or four day filibuster could kill it.

Farm Relief.

The Capper-Haugen bill will come up in both houses Tuesday Republican leaders promise. There is strong opposition to the measure, but a majority of both houses favors the bill and Senator Capper, chairman of the farm blocks, believes it will get through if no dilatory tactics are practiced by its opponents.

Lausanne Treaty.

Senators King, Utah and Swanson, Virginia, are working among senators on the floor in an effort to delay a vote. A filibuster may be attempted if Chairman Borah of the foreign relations committee carries out his announced intention of forcing the treaty before the Senate this week. President Coolidge, however, is working Republicans in line for its adoption and it has a majority.

Postal Pay Bill.

The conferees "are hardly speaking to each other," Chairman Moses of the Senate postoffice committee says. The bill passed by the Senate and House widely diverge and so far no spirit of compromise has been seen. The conferees meet again today.

Isle of Pines Treaty.

Senator Copeland, Dem., New York, declares the pact is dead for this session. Any attempt to revive it he says, will be strongly opposed by him. Hence it appears that this treaty which already has been pending twenty years, will go over another year.

FRIEDMAN'S

APPAREL FOR WOMEN

The time is passed when the measure of the value of a memorial is quantity. I hope the time has come when that measure is quality. I care not whether the material be marble or granite, its future will be measured by the character of the design. It is quality that has preserved for us the finest examples in painting and sculpture. It is quality that will stamp our imprint upon cemeteries of the future. Simplicity, correct lines and proportions and proper ornamentation are the real fundamentals. A design that is right, material that is lasting, and perfect workmanship, spells success for the future of this industry and the beautification of the cemetery. Will you let me help you select the memorial for your lot. Call at show room. NO AGENTS.

Show Eggs Are All Right.
X-rayed eggs are the latest wrinkle introduced by one of the largest grocery organizations in the city. To satisfy patrons of the purity and high quality of the eggs, it has installed in each branch store a patented container having a capacity of three dozen with a separate place for each egg. The container is filled with eggs picked at random from a case, after which a brilliant electric light is turned on beneath the eggs, and any "rots or spots" are revealed at once. It is the ordinary system of candling eggs, but sounds better when called X-raying.—New York Evening Post

Origin of a Marriage Trousseau.
One of the earliest evidences of outfitting for the wedding is found in Genesis in the story of Abraham's servant Eliezer bringing handsome jewels to Rebecca as a seal to the marriage compact. A trace of the custom may be found among the early Eskimos, where the bridegroom must supply his bride with all the clothes necessary for the "honeymoon." In Rumania, clothes and shoes are a very important part of the gifts to the bride. Largely from the customs practiced in the latter country, but also from Italy, Sweden, and Greece, the idea of the marriage trousseau sprang.

Queer Treatment of Infants.
Many are the queer remedies applied to the Greek baby when he is ill. The workings of the medicine man of our American Indians is not more fantastic. A bed of cold clinders is very generally used as a last resort. When the baby is almost beyond hope the cradle is filled with old ashes and the tiny tot is buried in them. The welfare nurse who told the writer this was never able to discover what the benefit to be derived was supposed to be. Had the ashes been warm we would have explained the custom as a primitive form of creating artificial heat. Among the gipsies who wander over Greece progress, for the present, is absolutely hopeless. It will take years of preparation and education to enable them merely to begin to understand the idea of social betterment. For the moment "Kismet" and "Allah wills it" rule their lives and kill all initiative.

Dressed Up; No Place to Go

By RUBY DOUGLAS

(Copyright.)

THE little drab-colored usher had seated the last late theater-goer in her section and had sought a dark, quiet spot in a corner of the promenade aisle. The red light from the exit sign enveloped her Quaker gray uniform in a rosininess that was becoming beyond mere words to describe.

The door behind her opened quietly and closed quickly. A big, uniformed fireman tip-toed in. He stood close beside her, his arms folded.

They did not know each other, though she ushered there each night and he stood about to comply with the fire law in the theaters.

The fireman turned to her with a broad grin. There was nothing on the stage that was amusing, but the infectious gurgle beside him had brought out his ready smile.

"I couldn't help it," she said softly.

"Help what?"

"Laughing out loud," she explained. "Tell me so that I, too, may be mirthful," he insisted. They whispered, perforce.

"I was just thinking how you and I are all dressed up and no place to go," she said, trying to be quiet in her glee.

"It's true—you in your usher's uniform, me in my fireman's grandeur. It is funny," he admitted.

"Veritably—all the world's a stage as Shakespeare said," she went on. "I've often thought how you and I stand around here every night decked out to kill. You stand bravely around in your grand brass buttons and visored cap looking bored to death. I sashay up and down the aisles in this Quaker outfit that no more suits my temperament than it suits yours! You are realer than I am, but—it's all up-stage stuff together."

The big man almost laughed aloud. His arms were not folded now and he did not look bored.

"What are you going to do about it?" he asked.

"Nothing—it's all I can do to earn my salt."

"And we all have to do that," added the man. "I supposed every girl who took this sort of a job hoped to be an actress," he went on.

"Heaven forbid," said the little usher.

"Then what do you want to be?" ventured the fireman.

"An honest and truly girl who doesn't have to act. A girl who can be real—all the time," answered the usher a bit wistfully.

The fireman did not reply. He had caught the pensive note.

"That's a laudable ambition," he said after a while, "but it isn't being done."

The girl acquiesced quickly. "Well do I know it."

After that night when her sense of humor had brought them together they became friends. It was some time before the big fireman mustered courage to ask the little usher if she would spend, perhaps, the next free evening she had with him.

"In my regular clothes?" she asked laughingly.

"You're taking no more chance than I am—plain Jane," he said.

"I'm almost afraid to see you without your grand uniform. You know how we women love brass buttons."

"Nevertheless, I'm going to take a chance, if you'll let me."

They took their free evening together far from the theater district. In a quiet, restful garden they found a table for two and there they sat getting better acquainted.

"Do you like me in regular clothes," asked the usher.

"Yes," said the big fireman, "if that expresses it."

"And I think you are almost handsome in that brown suit. I like it better with your hazel eyes and light hair than I do the blue of your uniform. Firemen should have blue eyes to match," she laughed.

After that she asked him just why he happened to be a fireman and he told her. He had further ambitions, but he was young and the excitement had appealed to him. Ever since he had been a small boy he had loved to go to fires and chase red fire wagons.

"Suppose—suppose our theater should get on fire," said the little usher.

"I should dash quickly out with you in my arms," he said, almost without thinking.

"Oh!" breathed the girl. "Oh!" she repeated.

The man went on eating. He had not meant to blurt out those words so boldly. "You see," he said, "I was just being real."

She did not reply.

"Don't you want to allow me the privilege of being real as well as yourself?" he asked.

"But—yes, of course I do. Only I hadn't realized what—"

"You just hadn't realized that while I've been seeing you in your sweet little drab Quaker costume every night I've been slowly, almost unconsciously falling in love with you. You hadn't realized that that spontaneous little laugh of yours that night when we first spoke went straight to my heart. You hadn't realized that now, when you are your real self, with all the uniform taken away you are quite irresistible to me. Beth, I love you and I want you to spend your days with me being just an honest and truly girl—my girl. Will you?"

"Of course—well, that's my ambition, isn't it?"

"The Store That Treats You Right."

Evolution of Clothes Terms.

Dozens and dozens of clothes terms there are that indicate the evolution of clothes among our ancestors. Petticoat, which has been used as a not very respectful synonym for women in general, was a garment for men originally, and was the undercoat worn beneath the heavier overcoat. It was fairly long, and eventually the word came to be applied to the garments that evolved from this "petti," or small coat.

Provided For.

"Yes, pastor, I am glad that my son, Ola, is now safely provided for the rest of his life." "Indeed! How is that?" "Well, I don't know how. I only know that we heard from him yesterday from Christiania telling us that some judge had just given him a life term."—Christiania Vikings.
